Notes for Applicants

1. A Temporary Business Radio licence allows for the use of radio equipment at a specified location and event for the duration specified on the licence, not exceeding a maximum period of six months.
2. Prior to completing an application, applicants are advised to read ComReg 08/08, Radio Licensing for Special Events and Temporary use in Ireland Guidance Notes (as revised)¹.
3. Licences for Temporary Business Radio use are issued on a secondary basis (non-interference and non-protected) i.e. the system cannot cause interference to primary users and will not be protected from interference caused by primary users in that band.
4. Licensed Temporary Business Radio systems that cause interference to any primary users in the licensed frequency band will be required to cease operation immediately.
5. Applicants should note that licensees are required to share assigned radio frequencies with other licensees and that licences are not assigned on an exclusive usage basis.
6. The channels that are available for Temporary Business Radio licensing are also detailed in the latest revision of the guidelines, ComReg 08/08.
7. The radio frequency spectrum is a scarce natural resource and the amount of spectrum space that can be allocated to the various radio services is limited.
8. To allow sufficient processing time, applicants in submitting applications, must adhere to the timelines indicated in the guidelines document (ComReg 08/08) for the various event types. It will be more difficult for ComReg to accommodate the frequency requirements for applications received after these cut off times.
9. An application will not be processed until ComReg has received a valid application. An application is only considered valid on receipt of a completed Application Form with a signed Declaration Form found in Part 4A and on receipt of the licence fee. Invalid applications will not be processed.
10. The fees for Temporary Business Radio are based on quantity of equipment in use and consist of a fixed charge of €12 plus a €12 fee for each piece of equipment used.
11. Licences must be issued to a legal entity i.e. either an individual or a limited company.
12. Completed Applications should be forwarded to:

Licensing@comreg.ie with PMSE inserted in the subject line, or;

The Commission for Communications Regulation
Spectrum Licensing Section
Abbey Court, Irish Life Centre
Lower Abbey Street
Dublin 1
