1 Introduction

This Guidance relates to authorised Undertakings and their dealings with customers and other Undertakings and references the relevant law applicable to GLUMP and the provision of telephony and broadband services.

GLUMP is combined LLU (Local Loop Unbundling) and GNP (Geographic Number Portability) product which was launched in August 2006. This product enables customers to move between providers (Undertakings) to take an LLU service with an alternative service provider (Undertaking) and keep their existing telephone number.

This Guidance includes some specific provisions relevant to the wholesale inter-operator relationship and other provisions relevant to the provision of retail services to customers and all end users. Additionally there is reference to some of the relevant law applicable to operators and customers in the context of the provision of services via GLUMP within the remit of other agencies.

This Guidance is intended as a general guide for industry as to the enactments, regulatory decisions and directions that they must meet. However this document does not describe how Undertakings are required to discharge their duties and obligations. This document also makes reference to some non-legally binding publications such as those published by ComReg, which though not binding is still relevant. The Guidance further refers to certain industry agreed practices<sup>1</sup> which, though currently not legally binding, may be legally binding on the amendment of the General Authorisation.

A link to this Guidance document is available on ComReg's website www.comreg.ie

Status of Guidance

This Guidance is of itself unenforceable but any legal duties mentioned herein exist independently of this document and continue to exist and be enforceable of themselves. If there is a conflict between this Guidance document and any legal requirements, the latter shall prevail. It is not intended that this document vary the law. Compliance with this document does not guarantee compliance with the law and this Guidance is not a substitute for legal advice.

2 Objectives of the Guidance

The main objectives of this Guidance are:

- To highlight to Undertakings some of the most important legislative provisions and regulatory directions pertinent to the provision of telephony and broadband services pertaining to the provision of GLUMP;
- To highlight some of the legislative provisions that exist in relation to the requirement for pre-contractual information pertaining to customers contracts;
- To increase customer confidence in their dealings with Undertakings, and increase competitiveness of the market to the benefit of both customers and Undertakings;
- To highlight where some legal obligations and duties lie and to endeavour to relate some duties with the applicable enforcement agency where possible;
- To benefit customers and Undertakings by encouraging adherence to legal requirements from industry.

2.1 General Authorisation consultation

ComReg plans to consult on proposed amendments to the General Authorisation, in particular the Consumer Protection Rules (Section 18<sup>2</sup>). It is expected that this consultation will be completed by the end of 2007. Three elements from the GLUMP Code of Practice (CoP) review will be proposed for inclusion in Section 18:

- (i) The use of the Customer Authorisation Form (CAF) or equivalent authorisation process such as Third Party Verification (TPV);
- (ii) The requirement for the UAN (Customer Account Number) to appear on the customer bill; and
- (iii) The provision of an Anti-slamming letter.

In the interim ComReg expects that these elements previously agreed and observed by industry as set out in the GLUMP Code of Practice will be adhered to by Undertakings.

3 Legal Requirements

When providing services to customers, Undertakings are subject to a range of existing legal requirements some of which may fall for consideration by various agencies, such as statutory enforcement agencies, or other agencies such as the Advertising Standards Authority for Ireland (ASAI). Some legal requirements are of course enforceable contractually between parties through the courts or through another alternative dispute resolution process and/or by the relevant enforcement agency.

This document collates some of the key legal provisions pertinent to GLUMP and the provision of telephony and broadband services in that context and endeavours to denote the competent agency or agencies.

The legal requirements that fall within ComReg's remit are discussed in the next section in addition to some of the key legal provisions within the competence of other agencies. For ease of reference a table of some of the relevant law and the relevant agency in each case is also detailed in Appendix 2. The list of agencies, while not exhaustive, includes the following at the time of printing:

- (i) ComReg
- (ii) Others, including in particular:
  - the National Consumer Agency (NCA)
  - the Office of the Data Protection Commissioner (ODPC)

See Appendix 2 for further details.

5 Enforcement & Compliance

ComReg possess jurisdiction for the enforcement of certain provisions that are contained in this Guidance. ComReg does not hold exclusive jurisdiction in relation to the enforcement of all legal requirements contained in this document and whether ComReg has a role as regards enforcement will depend on the act or omission at issue.

Where ComReg is the appropriate enforcement agency, it may take enforcement action as set out in the various Regulations<sup>6</sup> and the Communications Regulations Act 2002 as amended. For instance Undertakings will be aware that as regards matters which fall within the remit of ComReg, it is within the power of ComReg to monitor compliance with obligations, requirements or directions under the Regulations, and if deemed necessary, to notify the person of those findings and give the person an opportunity to state his or her views. ComReg may publish any notification given by it. If ComReg is of the opinion that a person has not complied with an obligation, requirement or direction under those Regulations, it may apply to the High Court for such order as may be appropriate by way of compliance with the obligation, requirement or direction. See Regulation 32 of the Universal Service Regulations for more detail regarding this example of ComReg's enforcement powers. ComReg also possesses monitoring and investigatory powers to assist in issues of compliance.

The foregoing does not represent an exhaustive list of the types of compliance, enforcement actions or sanctions available to ComReg. Details of ComReg's powers in these matters can be found, in particular, within the terms of the various Regulations referred to and the Communications Regulations Act 2002 as amended by the Communications Regulations (Amendment) Act 2007.

The nature of a sanction for breach of an obligation or legal requirement will depend on which particular law or regulatory provision that has been offended, the severity of this, and which agency or authority is charged with enforcing the particular provision i.e. what type of powers that agency or authority possess as regards sanctions, compliance and enforcement. It is also not possible to state what a court might determine. Undertakings should consult with the relevant agencies to apprise themselves of the enforcement procedures of a particular agency.
